Asia's hotel scene is booming again, and these are some of the most stylish spots to stay, writes Katie Lockhart

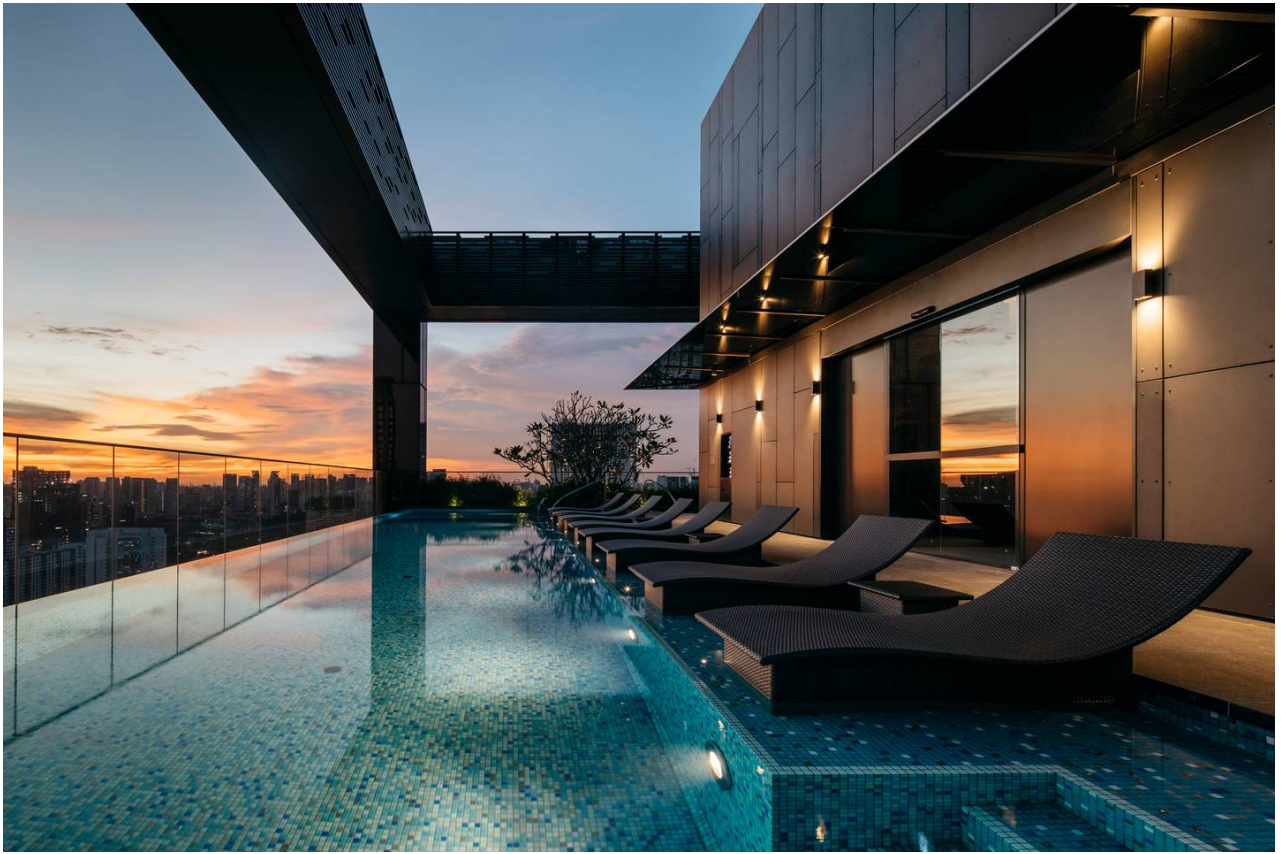

Countries across Asia were the first to clamp down on their borders in early 2020 and more than two years later, some of them are still shut. During that time, they rebuilt roads, cleaned up beaches and opened new hotels.

Now that the majority of Asian countries are back stamping passports for holiday-starved travellers, there's a slew of new stays worth booking. From city hotels in Vietnam to beach resorts in the Maldives and everything in between, here are 15 hotels that will make you think twice about returning home.

Singapore

The Clan Named after Chinese clan associations that popped up in Singapore during the early 1800s, this sleek new hotel honours its Chinatown location. Guests are welcomed with a Chinese tea ceremony and whisked away to their minimalist rooms where white, grey and beige colours keep the space light and airy. Designed with the business traveller in mind, the hotel's rooftop Sky Pool and Sky Gym fitness centre have spectacular views of downtown Singapore.
