Since the pandemic hit, staycations have seemingly taken over as our only form of travel. Even though Singapore formed travel bubbles with a few countries, a lot of us are probably more comfortable with the idea of staying in the country at a different postal code, where it's easier to monitor and control our own exposure to the ongoing pandemic.

While staycations seem to always offer the same sort of itinerary, some hotels have taken to refreshing their packages to provide an alternative staycation experience that resonates best with locals. In addition to enjoying the perks of being a tourist in your own country, here are 6 hotels that hope to complete your weekend getaway with an exciting foodie adventure.

6. The Clan Hotel: Craft and Cook

For those that are looking to splurge a little more on their staycation, The Clan Hotel's latest experiential staycation package might just be what you've been looking for.

The stay includes two nights in their MASTER Series Premier Room, a four-course dinner at the mod-Chinese Qin restaurant, as well as an experiential activity of your choice — Master of Craft Sandal-Making Workshop by Shoe Artistry or a Cultural Culinary Food Tour by Let's Go Tour.

The Craft and Cook staycation is available at $1,048 and can be booked through here.
